

WHS, WNHS National Honors Society chapters select 81 inductees

Woodstock Community Unit School District 200 is proud to announce that 81 new inductees were recently welcomed into their respective high school National Honor Society chapters.

Students selected for the National Honor Society must demonstrate qualities of leadership, character and service and selected by a board of faculty members. In the District 200 chapters, students are also required to earn a cumulative grade point average of 3.75 or higher.

Woodstock North High School teachers and NHS advisers Jillian Barry and Patti Baltes said they were amazed at this year's inductees' resilience despite the COVID-19 pandemic.

"The foundation of NHS is built upon 4 pillars which include character, leadership, scholarship and service. This year has presented unprecedented challenges, yet our members have used their creativity, enthusiasm and leadership to make a difference in both our school and the community," Baltes said.

Similarly, Woodstock High School teachers and NHS advisers Lyndra Bastian and Rich Stiles remarked on how students have had to use some ingenuity in their 2020 approaches to service.

"The NHS students have really impressed us this year. They have stepped up to better our community in a time when things are difficult for everyone. Members are tutoring district students through Google Meets, writing cards for nursing home residents, donating clothing and food to locals in need, and volunteering in ways they feel comfortable and safe," Bastian said.
